

Parador de Cáceres

The Parador:

This gem of a Parador dates back in part to the 14th century and built on even older Moorish foundations. It has been created by the amalgamation of the palaces of the Marquises of Torreorgaz and Ovando Mogollón, Perero y Paredes House. The Parador underwent extensive refurbishment in 2009-11, and new energy efficiency measures have made it a hotel that will set the standard for tourism and gastronomy in the region. The hotel is in the heart of the historical and artistic quarter of Cáceres, an ancient walled town so rich in old buildings that it has been declared a UNESCO World Heritage Site. Such is the unspoilt nature of the old town, or Ciudad Monumental (also famous for its many storks' nests), that many historical dramas have been filmed

Directions

Arriving by car:

The historic old quarter of Cáceres adds to the virtues of the Parador, which has the only vehicle access in this lovely monumental setting. Located on Ancha Street, take Santa Clara as your point of reference. If you come by car, you will find bollards in the square which restrict access to the Parador. To continue, you must contact the local police using the intercom at the traffic light. Indicate that you have reservations at the Parador and the bollards will be lowered. If there is another vehicle in front of you which has also requested access, never follow directly behind it. Wait for the bollards to rise and use the intercom to request access for your vehicle.
