

Parador de Carmona

The Parador:

This imposing citadel was begun by the Moors and enlarged by King Pedro (it is known as the Alcázar del Rey Don Pedro). The building dominates the historic town of Carmona, which stands on a ridge overlooking the central plain of Andalusia, just 30 km from Seville on the road to Cordoba. Carmona – known as Carmo to the Romans – was a Moorish stronghold until captured in 1247 by Ferdinand III of Castile, who gave the town its motto: 'As the Morning Star shines in the dawn, so shines Carmona in Andalusia'.

Primary Facilities:

- Lift
