

Parador de Granada

The Parador:

This exceptional Parador offers the visitor a unique opportunity – to stay within the Alhambra, one of the greatest wonders of the medieval world. Built between 1238 and 1358 on a hilltop site outside Granada, the citadel of the Alhambra was the last stronghold of the Moors in Spain, finally falling to the Christians in 1492. The Alhambra (from al-hamra, Arabic for 'the red', referring to the red stucco of the walls) consists of a complex of palaces and fortresses, and the Parador San Francisco, as it is known, was originally part of a 14th-century palace and mosque, later converted into a Franciscan convent.
